“ Casey and I became very good friends many years ago. He had a skill set that most men dream about. He was successful because he was loved by family and many friends. Friends that would drop what they were doing to help him out. But as was the case 99% of the time he was the one dropping what he was doing to help out. His business was successful because he truly worked himself and staff to find the best insurance for the money to be sure you were covered. Upon retirement he worked his cattle business along with his brother that offered great stock at a fair price. I know because not only did I buy insurance from Casey I knew I couldn't find any one better to stock my own farm. I can't believe that he is gone. Time will eventually heal the heart but the memories of Casey will live long after I'm gone!! He was a Class Act!!
