“ I remember Charles came to Phoenix, AZ in the 70's and became a very close friend of our family, the Barcus's. He had invented this gas saving device and was attempting to have it patented. It never worked out but never the less it was an ingenious device. I was 17 or 18 years old at the time. I'll never forget him, he made an impression on my life. He had been through some rough times but he really had a heart of gold. He'll always be in my memories. God rest his soul.

“ Charles is and was one of a kind in his natural-born ability to build something useful and functional out of next to nothing, to solve construction challenges with his innate understanding of physics, as well as create beautiful art with wood. His crazy, fun humor was matched only by the greatness of his spiritual heart, and his deep faith is guiding him now in the Light. We shared many adventures together through the 48 years he was my close friend, as well as the big brother I never had.

Comfort and peace to Ilene, Lee, Ray, Vicki, Pam and Charles' many family members and friends. Remember the love is unchanged.

Rest in peace, Big Brother. I know you're waiting for me with open arms.
